

Bulletin from Mayor Elaine Scruggs

Arizona State University's West Campus was created in 1984 after extensive efforts to expand educational opportunities in the West Valley. ASU at the West campus currently serves over 8,000 students. The campus has increased opportunities for Glendale, and other West Valley residents, to obtain a high quality education.

Recently, the West campus hosted a ceremony celebrating the launch of a new School of Criminology and Criminal Justice. Arizona Supreme Court Justice Ruth McGregor was the keynote speaker at the event and detailed the many ways the research and services the new school will provide will benefit us all.

The new School of Criminology and Criminal Justice marks the continuing growth of ASU's West campus, and also provides additional opportunities for West Valley residents to develop the skills that are necessary to fill law enforcement, court administration, probation, corrections and other positions.

You can stay up to date on this and other West campus related issues by subscribing, at no cost, to their monthly e-newsletter, "The Community @ West." Simply go to www.west.asu.edu/asuw2/atwestnews.htm and follow the simple instructions.

"The Community @ West" connects people with ASU's colleges and programs to:

- Enjoy arts and cultural events
- Enrich your lifelong learning
- Participate in ASU's community partnerships.

I encourage you to forward this to family, friends and associates who also would enjoy learning about the university's wonderful resources and the many contributions it makes to the West Valley.

Thank you taking the time to read my "Glendale Bulletins". Please contact me at (623) 930-2260 or mayorscruggs@glendaleaz.com, if you have any comments or questions. I strive to provide the most timely information and best possible service to you, the citizens of Glendale. I sincerely appreciate your feedback.
